3. Agenda Items

- Present the current system prototype to the client
- Demonstrate the current dashboard and navigation
- Review the overall system layout and usability
- Obtain client feedback on the prototype
- Discuss possible dashboard improvements
- Discuss notification requirements
- Identify changes to be considered during further development

4. Discussion & Decisions

Prototype Demonstration:

- The team presented the current system prototype to the client.
- The dashboard, navigation and selected system functionality were demonstrated.
- The client reviewed the prototype and provided feedback on the overall appearance and usability of the system.
- The client indicated that the dashboard could be made more user-friendly and visually appealing.
- The team discussed ways of organising the dashboard so that important information and frequently used functions would be easier to access.

Dashboard Improvements:

- The client provided suggestions for improving the dashboard layout.
- The team discussed making the interface clearer and easier for staff to navigate.
- The group agreed to consider the client's feedback when refining the dashboard and other user interface elements.

Notifications:

- The client requested that the system include a notification feature for important events and information.
- The team discussed how notifications could help users identify items requiring attention without having to manually check each section of the system.
- Possible notifications discussed included low-stock alerts, new quotations or invoices, and payment-related notifications.
- The team agreed to investigate the notification requirement and incorporate appropriate notifications into the system.

General Client Feedback:

- The client emphasised that the system should remain simple and practical for day-to-day business use.
- The team discussed ensuring that the developing functionality continued to address the original business requirements.
- The feedback received from the client was recorded for consideration during the next stage of development.
